hushua were allowed to cross to the American side only a few at a time. Those who crossed, representing wealthy families, whose lives were thought to be in danger at the hands of rebels, went immediately to the nearest railway station at Marfa, Tex. It was said civilian families were being held in Ojinaga in the belief that the rebels would not attack noncombatants. That the rank and sile of the Fed-

That the rank and file of the Federals looked upon the prospect of any more fighting with distavor was manifest. A score of soldiers, in ragged uniforms, saluted the American cavalrymen on the border patrol and wistfully inquired whether they might cross the river. Answered in the negative, they said they would desert if they were attacked by the rebels. The fact that the Federal troops have long been without pay was thought to have determined their attitude.

Federal Train Dynamited.

Mexico City, December 16.-A Federal troop train is reported to have been dynamited north of Monterey, and the loss of life is said to be heavy. The train was on its way to Nuevo Laredo to reinforce the garrison there. Pourteen cars loaded with troops, it is understood, succeeded in reaching Laredo in advance of the train which Taking Over Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

Announce Plan for Relief of Conditions.

Washington, December 10 .- Government ownership of telegraph and tele-phone lines is being seriously consid-ered by President Wilson.

Conferences between the President and Postmaster-General Burleson have led to a gathering of information about practical working of government ownership in those nations where such a system is in operation. The subject will be discussed in the Postmaster-General's annual report, though it is not assured that he will make any nostitive recommendations.

positive recommendations. Though bills have been drafted looking to government ownership, none has been agreed upon as an administration

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Burle-son to-day, "that the inauguration of the parcel post and the postal savings systems has given a tremendous im-petus to the desire of people all over the parcel post and the postal savings systems has given a tremendous impetus to the desire of people all over the country to have the government become the means of communication everywhere. It is a subject involving $200,000,000 or $306,000,000, and we must go very clowly in inquiring into it.
